

Expecting parents or current parents are always going to need ways to connect with their children. Or the children who show up to their homes for parties, gatherings, and friendly get-togethers. That's why when I got asked, "Hey Ryan, what are some great would you rather questions for parents to use?" I said I got a few!

Before we jump in, my experience with these game questions...

I absolutely love the game of "would you rather." It's simple. And very easy to make up your own game questions once you get the hang of it. Typically, what I see, is that parents or people use a few game questions to get the concept and theme. Then make up their own questions.

The reason I love this game is because... it's so simple! There's no real need for instructions. People love to hear the questions, think about themselves, and answer in ways that show their personality.

To play, simply start asking! Or, if you really need it, here's an instructional video that I like (with some game questions).
